

3 hot-selling new cookbooks

A Gourmet's Journey by Jasleen Dhamija, ₹350 (Women Unlimited: an associate of Kali for Women) Having travelled the world during her stint in the UN, Jasleen Dhamija brings her unique experiences and perspectives about heritage and cuisines of the Middle-East, Central Asia, Africa and the Balkans, into this book. It is also about Discovering the Exotic & Erotic in Food.

Guilt-free Vegan Cookbook by Nandini Gulati & Mala Barua, ₹716 (Roli Books) A carefully curated, delicious and healthy recipes covering a range of cuisines including Indian, Thai, Italian, Mediterranean and continental.

The Lucknow Cookbook by Chand Sur & Sunita Kohli, ₹499 (Aleph) Noted interior designer Sunita Kohli of K2India, along with her mother Chand Sur, presents a book on the Lucknow cuisine, redolent with the flavours of Sindhi, Parsi, Punjabi, Nawabi, Mughlai and British food. Sunita's parents had moved from Lahore to Lucknow during the Partition, and one can experience the smells of the past home in the recipes.